

Joyce Merkel, M.S., R.D.
Information Specialist Contractor
Office of Dietary Supplements
National Institutes of Health

Joyce Merkel, M.S., R.D., is an information specialist contractor at the National Institutes of Health's (NIH) Office of Dietary Supplements (ODS), primarily working on dietary supplement literature databases and in communication and promotion activities for the office. Prior to coming to ODS, she was a nutrition information specialist for the Food and Nutrition Information Center at the USDA National Agricultural Library, working on the Nutrition.gov Web site; an assistant professor of nutrition and dietetics at the College of St. Benedict/St. John's University in Minnesota; a nutrition specialist for the North Dakota State University Extension Service; a Medicare and Medicaid surveyor for the North Dakota State Health Department; and a hospital clinical dietitian. She received her B.S. and M.S. in nutrition from North Dakota State University and performed doctoral work in nutrition science at Syracuse University.